Durham Arts Council Building

1980's Campaign to Create a Home for the Arts

Durham Arts Council leaders do what it takes to strengthen the arts in Durham!

In the mid-1980's, DAC launched a capital and community campaign to seek private and public support to renovate the aging City Hall building that DAC had occupied since 1978. DAC raised over $1 million in cash plus additional in-kind donations, and the City and County each provided $2.15 million.

Following the renovation of DAC, the Durham Arts Council provided leadership to build a renovation campaign and community effort to restore the Carolina Theatre

- The community and arts organizations rely on DAC as the home for the arts in their community – where they can participate, create & be supported in their artistic work.

- 5,251 arts events, rehearsals, meetings, performances, classes & community events in FY2013 were at DAC. 25,306 hours of room usage.

DURHAM ARTS COUNCIL

Why Is Arts Participation So Important to a Community?

- Development of a creative workforce
- Life-long learning & enrichment
- Arts participation opportunities add to quality of life and desirability of community.

- " The success of my family's business depends on finding and cultivating a creative and innovative workforce. When we participate personally in the arts, we strengthen our 'creativity muscles,' which makes us not just a better ceramicist or chorus member, but a more creative worker – better able to identify challenges and innovative business solutions." Christopher Forbes, Vice Chairman, Forbes, Inc.
