This conversation is a continuation of the Office on Youth's Youth Listening Project. The project involves conversations with Durham's young people and families. At these reflecting back sessions, young people and families will give feedback on a list of recommendations that the Office on Youth put together based on previous conversations with Durham youth and families. Recommendations will be presented to the City of Durham and Durham County to improve youth services and engage young people as decision makers. The Office on Youth will work with partners to make sure these conversations lead to action.
